

Dear Parents,

We've enjoyed visits from both Rev Mark and Barry this week, who have helped us to think about Remembrance day. We shared a beautiful minute's silence in a large, poppy-like circle, having listened to the following extract from Laurence Binyon's poem 'For the fallen' read by Hannah, Hattie and Natasha:

*They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old:
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.*

Welcome

A special Redmile welcome to Mr Doyle (Miss Doyle's brother) who joins us as a volunteer helper over the coming weeks.

Clubs

There will be no Film Club next week, as staff are out of school.

Morning drop-off

It has come to our attention, that some children are arriving early and being left on the playground unsupervised.

May I remind you that children will be supervised from 8.40am until the bell goes at 8.50am, so leaving children on their own before this time is not acceptable, as it is not safe.

This is the only school that I have worked in where staff supervise before school starts. In other schools children are cared for by their parents until the bell goes, therefore please help us in our mission to help you, as well as provide a lovely period of time for the children to catch up with their friends.

Thank you.
